Advice for Sunday School Children

Here are some tips for giving advice to Sunday school children:

- Be positive. Children are more likely to listen to you if you are positive and encouraging. Avoid being critical or judgmental.
- Be specific. Don't just tell children to "be good." Give them specific examples of what that looks like. For example, you could say, "Be kind to your classmates" or "Help your mom around the house."

- Be age-appropriate. The advice you give should be appropriate for the age and maturity level of the children you are teaching.
- Be consistent. Children need to hear the same advice from multiple sources in order to really learn it. Make sure that you are consistent in your message.
- Pray for the children. Pray that they will be receptive to your advice and that they will grow in their faith.
