"The Runner's Lament" by Ogden Nash

>I jog and I jog and I jog, >Until I am ready to drop; >And yet, though I jog and I jog and I jog, >I never can seem to get to the top.

>I run and I run and I run, >Until I am ready to fall; >And yet, though I run and I run, >I never can seem to get to the wall.

>I sprint and I sprint and I sprint and I sprint, >Until I am ready to faint; >And yet, though I sprint and I sprint and I sprint, >I never can seem to get to the paint.

"The Joys of Running" by an Unknown Author

>I love to run, >It's my favorite thing to do. >I love the feel of the wind in my hair, >And the sun on my skin.

>I love the way my legs pump, >And my heart beats in my chest. >I love the feeling of accomplishment, >When I finally reach my rest.

>But most of all, >I love the way running makes me feel. >It makes me feel alive, >And it makes me feel free.

"Ode to a Runner" by William Carlos Williams

>The runner, >A creature of grace, >Moving with effortless ease, >Gliding over the ground.

>The runner, >A picture of health, >Strong and fit, >A model of human perfection.

>The runner, >An inspiration to us all, >A reminder that anything is possible, >If we just put our minds to it.

"Why I Run" by an Unknown Author

>I run because it's good for me, >It keeps me healthy and fit. >I run because it makes me happy, >It clears my head and gives me a lift.

>I run because it's a challenge, >It pushes me to my limits. >I run because it's a way to connect with nature, >And with myself.

>I run because it's a way to escape, >From the stresses of everyday life. >I run because it's a way to find myself, >And to discover what I'm capable of.

"The Running Life" by an Unknown Author

>The running life is a simple life, >But it's a life that's full of joy. >It's a life that's filled with challenges, >But it's also a life that's filled with rewards.
