Jeff Healey was a Canadian blues guitarist, singer, and songwriter who was born blind. He was known for his unique playing style, which involved playing the guitar on his lap while using a slide. Healey was also a talented vocalist, and he often sang while playing guitar. He was a member of the Jeff Healey Band, which released several successful albums in the 1980s and 1990s.

Healey was born in Toronto, Ontario, Canada, on March 25, 1966. He was born with retinoblastoma, a rare form of eye cancer. As a result of his cancer, Healey's eyes were removed when he was 10 months old. Despite his blindness, Healey developed a passion for music at a young age. He began playing guitar when he was three years old, and he quickly developed a unique playing style. He taught himself to play the guitar on his lap, and he used a slide to create a unique sound.

In 1985, Healey founded the Jeff Healey Band. The band released its debut album, "See the Light," in 1988. The album was a commercial success, and it spawned the hit single "Angel Eyes." The Jeff Healey Band went on to release several more successful albums, including "Hell to Pay" (1990), "Feel This" (1992), and "Cover to Cover" (1995). The band also toured extensively, and they performed on several television shows, including "Saturday Night Live" and "The Tonight Show with Jay Leno."

Healey was a talented musician, and he was also a successful songwriter. He wrote or co-wrote many of the songs that the Jeff Healey Band recorded. Healey's songs were often about love, loss, and redemption. He was also a gifted performer, and he was known for his energetic live shows.

In 1990, Healey was diagnosed with sarcoma, a rare form of cancer. He underwent several rounds of chemotherapy and radiation, but the cancer eventually returned. Healey died on January 2, 2008, at the age of 41.

Healey was a talented musician and a gifted songwriter. He was also a role model for people with disabilities. He showed that anything is possible if you set your mind to it. Healey's music continues to inspire people around the world.

The film "Out of Darkness: The Jeff Healey Story" is a powerful and captivating tribute to this extraordinary musician. The film chronicles Healey's life and career, from his humble beginnings to his rise to international stardom. The film also explores the challenges, triumphs, and personal struggles that shaped this remarkable artist.

The film is a must-see for fans of Jeff Healey and for anyone who is interested in the power of music. It is a story of talent, triumph, and tragedy that will stay with you long after the credits roll.
